Downtown

The Village

"The Village" can refer to only one place: Greenwich Village. Reknowned for its eclecticism, it is home to a wide variety of cafes, clubs, and small theatres. This neighborhood has a unique culture all of its own.

Chinatown and Little Italy

New York City is internationally known for its ethnic diversity. Perhaps no other neighborhood illustrates the uniqueness of a particular culture than Chinatown. As one of the largest Chinese-American communities in the United States, it is host to an annual celebration of Chinese New Year, a time of parades and parties.

Little Italy is centered around Mulberry Street. It is home to numerous restaurants and pastry shops. Every September, this street is closed for the Feast of San Gennaro, a festive display of Italian American culture.

The World Trade Center and South Street Seaport

New York is famous for skyscrapers such as the World Trade Center. An observation deck and a popular restaurant is located on the top floor. The Seaport offers a similar experience, as well as a chance to see the historic ships docked there.

The Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island

The Statue of Liberty and Ellis Island are more than symbols of New York; they are symbols of America and the American dream. These landmarks are an integral part of the New York experience for every first-time visitor.

Midtown

Rockefeller Center and 5th Avenue

5th Avenue is one of the most visible and glamorous streets in New York City, location of many of New York's ethnic parades and celebrations as well as some of the most famous stores in the world: FAO Schwarz, Saks Fifth Avenue, Bergdorf Goodman, and Lord and Taylor, to name a few. Designers have their own boutiques scattered along the avenue, mostly between the thirties and high fifties. It borders Central Park, a lush haven for anyone needing to escape the bustle of the city that boasts its own zoo and skating rink. Two notable religious institutions are located on 5th Avenue: Saint Patrick's Cathedral at 50th Street and Temple Emanuel at 65th Street. One other highlight is Rockefeller Center, a complex of buildings, shops, and an open area used as a restaurant during the warmer months and as a skating rink during the winter. Its major attraction from shortly after Thanksgiving until after New Year's is the famous Christmas tree, which is lit in an elaborate ceremony every year.

Times Square and Vicinity

Cats, the Marriott Marquis, yellow cabs, Late Show with David Letterman, Coca Cola, Kate Moss...Welcome to Times Square! This is undoubtedly the most popular section of Manhattan, and rightfully so. Packed with Broadway theatres, tourist traps, and throngs of people, Times Square is truly the heart of New York City. Its bright lights, rushing commuters, and countless hot dog and pretzel vendors make it the only place to be.

-Janet Shin

Uptown

Upper West Side

It is easy to see that culture flourishes in uptown Manhattan, too. There are parks like Riverside Park, where Grant's Tomb is located. Zabar's offers more of an exotic variety of foods than the local grocery store, catering towards those with a more "gourmet" palate. A brief visit to Barnes & Nobles will more than likely turn into a long one, with its large collection of books and magazines to browse through. Columbus Avenue is a lively and bustling place, regardless of the time of day, with shops and bars to fit anyone's style and tastes. The new Sony IMAX theatre offers a new type of viewing experience. Donning special goggles, movies can be seen in 3-D on a larger than normal screen. Morningside Heights plays home to one of the top universities in the nation: Columbia. The Cathedral of St. John the Divine offers a respite from hectic days with its serene gardens.

Upper East Side

"Museum Mile," as the stretch of 5th Avenue on the Upper East Side is known, borders Central Park and is famous for the numerous museums located there, such as the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. One can also catch films, concerts, and lectures on a wide range of topics at the museums.

Residents of the Upper East Side also have a large variety of stores, theatres, and bars to choose from, although all Upper West Side-ers like to think their neighborhood offers more.

Barnard Styles

It is hard to believe that Barnard students find the time to dress in anything but your basic jeans and sweat-shirt college uniform. But somehow, with all those classes to go to, papers to write up, and exams to study for, they still manage to show off their styles.

The Barnard look is not about black anymore, if it ever was. This year, we saw tight, little baby-doll t-shirts, grubby jeans (ranging from regular blue to magenta corduroy), flannel shirts, long and flowing skirts, body piercings in all sorts of places, multi-colored hair, platform shoes, thigh-high stockings. . .

the list is endless. . .

The fun thing about the nineties is that it is a different kind of decade, as far as fashion goes. There is no prototype: anything goes, if you have the confidence to pull off the most daring of styles! Leafing through past yearbooks, it is surprising to see the same hair-styles, clothing, and types of people continually repeated in those pictures. But a look around campus reveals that diversity is not just a word used during Orientation, but a concept we have integrated into every aspect of our lives.

Local Restaurants

Just beyond the Barnard gates you can find more than your average fare. Tantalizing alternatives to campus dining are easily available within a few short blocks of campus. Whether it's Nacho Mama's burritos or a Tom's Broadway Shake that you crave, it is all nearby. Tom's, made famous by Suzanne Vega and Seinfeld, is still the place to take a two A.M. study break or to enjoy a home-cooked (well, sort of) breakfast. Service is usually fast, and the waiters are unobstrusive, while the menu is as comforting and familiar as the exterior facade. If you desire food with a little more flair, maybe grilled lamb from Symposium or popcorn shrimp from 107 West is more your style. If this proves to be too tame, perhaps something from the Mill or the Pluck can add spice. If it's Italian cuisine that whets your appetite, Cafe Pertutti's and Presto's are the places for you. Both are famous for their soft lighting and warm atmosphere, and their pasta dishes hit the spot. For relaxing with a slice of cake and a cup of cappucino after a long day of classes, the Hungarian Pastry Shop is the spot. The mellow atmosphere and delicious aromas put you instantly at ease. It's a place to enjoy the company of friends or a moment of solitude, with a view of St. John the Divine across the way. For times when culinary creativity overtakes you, the neighborhood grocery stores are what you need. Whether it's U.F.M. or D'Agostino's, Sloan's or West Side Market, the neighborhood grocery stores offer everything you could possibly need. In Morningside Heights, you can find whatever suits your fancy.

Music Around Campus

From hip-hop to "alternative," folk music to industrial, rap to classical to the revival of funk, blues, and jazz, students can always find performances around campus to suit their musical preference.

Aspiring musicians from around the tri-state area, as well as from the United States in general, travel to New York to perform in small nightclubs in hopes of getting noticed and signed by a major record company.

and celebrations (be it of the advent of spring or the beginning of school), there is always some form of musical entertainment that students can enjoy. Just by siting back and "chillin'" to a performance in the background, many students have been introduced to new genres for the first time.

In a place like New York City, the ever-changing world of the music industry will always offer up a different audio experience for those who are willing to lend an open ear.

Founders' Day: A Celebration of the Founding of Barnard

A Brief History

Every year, Barnard celebrates Founders' Day, in honor of the opening of the College on October 7, 1889. Students unfamiliar with the tradition began noticing signs around campus advertising, "You don't look a day over 104" prior to the event. This year, the festivities were highlighted by a street fair along Claremont Avenue and West 116th Street, featuring vendors' stalls, student organizations' tables, and diverse musical performances. The Student Government Association gave out (Barnard) blue plastic cups and red apples in honor of the event.

One of the little known ironies in Barnard's history is that the man for whom the College is named, Frederick Augustus Porter Barnard, did not live to see its opening.

According to Marian Churchill White's 1954 book, A History of Barnard College, published by Columbia University Press in honor of the bicentennial of the University, Barnard was born in 1809 to an established middle class family in western Massachusetts. His education was primarily outside of the schoolroom until he became the youngest member of his class at Yale, from which he graduated in 1828. White notes that "Barnard led the whole College in pure mathematics and the exact sciences. He was quick at sports, a leader in the literary society, and much attracted by the young ladies" (page 4). After graduation, Barnard discovered a love of teaching at the Hartford (Connecticut) Grammar School. He returned to Yale in 1830 and reorganized the method of instruction by dividing the teaching into subjects and assigning a teacher with expertise in that particular area. At age twenty-one, Yale offered him the chairmanship of the mathematics department. Advancing deafness motivated him to move on to a teaching position at the American Institute for the Deaf and Dumb in Hartford. From there, he moved on to a similar institution in New York.

Columbia College elected Barnard as its tenth President in 1864. Beginning in 1879, he called attention to the lack of equal opportunities for women in education. The Board of Trustees was not amenable to admitting women to Columbia College, although at times, according to White, women were allowed to audit classes and it eventually became possible to earn a certificate equivalent to a bachelor's degree. After a ten year fight, the Trustees approved the establishment of Barnard College on April 1, 1889. Barnard opened its doors at 343 Madison Avenue on October 7, 1889. The rest, as the saying goes, is history.

Hanging Out

Where do YOU hang out on campus? Barnard students have a wide variety of places where they do everything from A to Z: arguing, bargaining, cramming, dozing, eating, fretting, gossiping, hanging around, idling, joking, laughing, munching, noshing, obsessing, protesting, resting, sunbathing, typing, worrying, yapping, and zoning out. Here are some of the most popular: Lehman Lawn, McIntosh, and the steps of Low Library.

As everyone knows, Barnard College probably has one of the smallest campuses of the Seven Sisters. Beginning at 116th Street, the college stretches four blocks north; yet, when you are on the campus itself, there is a feeling of coziness. The farthest building from the Quad residence halls is Milbank, which is less than a five minute walk away. It also is rather convenient that you never have to wake up so early to travel a great distance to get to class, especially when the weather is cold. Besides, with the tunnels, who needs to go outside?

Every Barnard student must complete the sentence on her own. Studying styles and favorite study spots are entirely individual. Name any Barnard location and the chances are good that it is someone's study spot. Libraries are great, but they do not work well for everyone. Many students work better on the lawn, in a lounge, sprawled in bed, in a suite kitchen, and the list goes on....

Residence Halls

The Quad

Almost every non-commuting student who begins her college career at Barnard begins her residential life in the Quad. Reid residents usually envy those in Sulzberger for their air conditioning and adjustable heating units. Sulzberger-ites envy the students in Reid for their closet space and comparatively bright lighting. Brooks has the charm of the nearly one hundred-year-old building that it is, complete with fireplaces and rooms for students-of-yesteryear's attendant maids. A single in Hewitt seems very appealing to first-years stuck in the sometimes awkward double or triple. Lounges are places for communal activities and controlling the selection of television channels is a matter of dire importance. The Quad will forever be linked with the mandatory meal plan (except on the fourth and sixth housing exchange floors of Brooks and Hewitt) and the Hewitt Dining Hall. The cafe is a late night source of food and drink for the times when U.F.M. seems too far away.

The Tower

The Tower seems like the ultimate in Barnard housing to all first-years who are stuck on the lower floors of the Quad. Besides its newness, the Tower offers both private rooms and the benefits of semi-public lounges and kitchens. A low number in the housing lottery is essential for obtaining Tower housing. Forming a special interest suite is another ticket to the top. The seventeenth floor is host to all sorts of events, ranging from formal administration receptions to Hall Council-sponsored "Make Your Own Sundaes" parties.

-Peri Horowitz

(bottom): The television lounge in Plimpton Hall is a popular place for residents to spend time together.

Plimpton

Plimpton, the farthest away of all campus housing, is annually the home of choice for approximately 300 students. Almost as tall as the Tower, its residents are people who want single rooms in a suite environment. Being able to enjoy the walk to and from Amsterdam Avenue and West 121st Street is a minor prerequisite. Plimpton is far enough away that students get to experience the idea of living off campus without having to pay for rent in an apartment.

-Peri Horowitz

Lisa Tan

Elliott

A.k.a. "49 Claremont" and "Claremont and 119th," Elliott houses first-years not assigned to the Quad and upper-class students who choose it in the lottery. It is smaller than the other residences, housing "only" 130 students in singles and doubles. Community involvement is emphasized and the parlor is used for special functions.

-Peri Horowitz

620 West 116th Street

620 provides many of the same things as the other two college-owned buildings on West 116th Street, but almost exclusively for seniors (with the occasional junior mixed in). Most rooms are singles within suites. 620 has the best views of the Hudson River.

-Peri Horowitz

Mortarboard

Dana Ostrow

(top): For the lucky few, some rooms of 620 offer balconies and large french windows that overlook Claremont Avenue.

(bottom): Students clown around and ponder what it means to be a Barnard woman.

(right): So what do you think this is for?

600 and 616 West 116th Street

The "Suite Life" for sophomores and juniors is primarily located in these two apartment buildings, directly across the street from campus. Together, 600 and 616 house about 450 students, as well as a number of community tenants. 600's suites have mostly double rooms and 616 has a mixture of doubles and singles. Both buildings have rooms with views of the Hudson River (if you were lucky and living on a high enough story), amenities like wood floors, high ceilings, and an occasional fireplace. After a year on meal plan, moving to one of these two buildings means having to scrounge for food on your own and having the added responsibilities of maintaining communal areas.

Campus Dining

There's something about a red tray... Campus dining is synonymous with red trays. Whether you are eating in the Hewitt Dining Hall or the McIntosh Snack Bar, the red tray is there. Despite this, when alumnae look back on their eating habits while at Barnard, red trays are unlikely to be the thing they think of first.

First-year students sometimes think they live in the Hewitt Dining Hall. Convenient to most of the first-year housing and bound by a mandatory nineteen meals per week plan, Hewitt is the most logical choice. Operated by ARA Dining Services, it features a salad bar, grill and deli, and hot and cold dishes. Vegetarian and special diet meals are available. Barnard and Columbia are involved in a meal exchange program, allowing students of either institution to eat at the other's facilities at certain times.

Hewitt is also the home of the Barnard-Columbia kosher cafeteria. Dairy meals are served for lunch and meat meals are served for dinner. Someone who is unaware that the two dining facilities exist side by side with a common seating area might find it extremely strange to see two people seated next to each other, one eating off of white stoneware plates with stainless steel utensils and the other using paper plates and plastic utensils.

Sights seen around Hewitt: a line at the frozen yogurt machine, a sheet cake at dinner, people studying, bagels, an out of order conveyer belt for dirty trays and dishes, full garbage cans, flower vases, etc.

McIntosh provides a popular alternative to Hewitt, especially during the lunch hour. It is always busy with constant traffic through the tunnels, to the mailboxes, and to events in Upper Level McIntosh. There is a strong emphasis on cold foods and foods that are convenient to eat on the go.

Commuting

To many residents, the concept seems foreign: "Oh - you don't live on campus? But why not?" And the answer to that question (which every commuter has to respond to at least once a week) is as diverse as Barnard's student population. For some, family ties make living at home a logical choice. Then there are those who simply opt to live at home or off-campus, trading in the convenience of campus living for private facilities and home-cooked meals. But there are advantages to living off-campus: finals time isn't as stressful because you aren't surrounded by students madly cramming the day before. Of course, there is the added plus of home-cooked meals when living at home. What could be better?

Though nothing can bring back the hour Of splendour in the grass, of glory in the flower; We will grieve not, rather find strength in what remains behind; In faith that looks through death, In years that bring the philosophic mind. —Wordsworth

"What is love? 'Tis not Hereafter;
Present mirth hath present laughter;
What's to come is still unsure:
In Delay there lies no plenty;
Then come kiss me, sweet and twenty,
Youth's a stuff will not endure.
(Feste, Twelth Night)

GRADUATION

Mortarboard

"Graduation" —by Annie Chu from A Flower's Way

I know not how to be happy
I know not how to cry
Extended across my visage is a grin
A smile that deceives how I feel.

If I was sad
My tears would be sliding down the bridge of my nose
Tickling my upper lip as my tongue tried desperately to lick it.

If I was happy
My laugh would echo in the empty halls
The junk-filled lockers would brim with my golden moments of crisp giggling chuckles.

But right now I am confused
Tasting the sweet air of going off into adulthood
Cringing at the sounds of good-byes and keep in touches
Holding dearly onto black and white hard-covered yearbooks
Trying to forget the fifty-eights of tests past
Squeezing my friend's wrist tightly when I'm scared
Smiling for cameras catching seconds in time on glossy paper
Pictures that will turn to crinkling yellow—on the verge of falling to pieces, holding on to dearest memories.

My confusion turns to sour streams of tears
Then wild laughter that fills the vacant air
Slowly they mix at an equilibrium
Crying and Laughing at the same time.
Joyous Sorrows.

"I Will Remember" by Sae Yun Kim

For once in my life I feel my age—21, and surprisingly, it's alright with me. I really am rising to the occasion of my twenty-oneness and I do not balk. I acknowledge it in me, and quite a few of you seniors reading this column: the inevitable refinement that time and experience bestow upon us with a gentle kiss and blanketing stroke. Here we are—women. Women. What prompts me to make this declaration? Easy enough, a summer full of encounters with 17-year-olds, ranging fantastically in maturity, from the quivering ignoramus, to the wicked, self-possessed diva who has stolen wisdom way, way beyond her years. Well, to be frank, the sages were few and far between, which unequivocally tells you I spent most of my time with hesitant teeny-boppers.

I interviewed these girls, better known as prospective students, for Barnard's Admissions Office. A few I remember, many I've forgotten, but for the most part, they were very dear. Not so much for who they were as individuals, but for their position in time. Can you imagine? Poised upon the threshold yet again for the adventure of your life, ready to meet High School's more romantic, urbane cousin—college. "Well, what has your experience been like at Barnard?" the typical prospective would ask after she had discovered I was current student. I've answered this question in a variety of ways, but each time I tried to be most sensitive to the kind of mood I was creating, which I could only do by offering a few, strong impressionistic details. For instance,

"I Will Remember"

I will always remember my pistol-packing powerhouse of a professor for American Lit. She was a consummate professor; not only was she a fountain of knowledge, but she also had mastery over the skill of teaching itself. She knew her students. If I ever missed a lecture of her's—I grieved. I will also remember playing the part of a very hip carcinogen (Benzo(a)pyrene) in a dance about the formation of soot (rapid turns, circling arms, and all), choreographed by a friend of mine. In addition, I will distinctly remember furtively ducking out of Spanish my first year to finally catch a glimpse of Woody Allen who had been filming "Husbands and Wives" on the fourth floor of Barnard Hall. Everybody else had seen him, why hadn't I? He sat on a bench motioning animatedly while talking to a woman. Good enough, so I returned to class to learn more about the Spanish subjunctive tense.

"It's been good" is what ! really wanted to convey to the prospectives — and "I've really grown" is what I would add to myself mentally. Only the experience of sitting across from a 17-year-old to speak about college specifically could have so profoundly revealed to me the amount of growing I had done since I was that age. What I neglected to mention to my interviewees was that college, essentially, is a lone business. Oftentimes, it's just you and the text. Just you and the computer screen. It's not about the grade. It's not about impressing the professor. It's just about you. The solitariness may sound agonizing, but not long ago was re-reading Joyce's "The Dead", and for a moment, I had a crystalline understanding of why I had entered college in the first place, despite the loneliness. This time around, I was reading "The Dead" with a wholly different mind frame, and I could not believe, even if I had first read it as a fifteen-year-old, that I could have forgotten Joyce's poignant portrait of the stultified lives of Dubliners. But even before I had read the story again, I was reminded of it by one of my sharpest, most inspired interviewees. During my interview with her I had asked, "What gives you 'the perfect look of yearning'?" A month later I received a small, manila thank-you note from her on which she had written, "(I imagine) it's the way Gabriel's wife looked when she listened to distant music in Joyce's 'The Dead.'" I could feel a tingle playing gently upon my neck. "That's right. That's right," I whispered to myself.

"I Will Remember"

Years from now, after I've forgotten the principles of sensitization and habituation in learning theory, the aesthetic theories of Kant, the details of Titian's and Tiepolo's lives, and anything else I've tried to absorb in an intense, short amount of time, her small gesture, her one note, I will remember as a bright point in the spectrum of my college years.

"LePanto's" —by Francesca Mabon

I like this, it's not a big deal,
I like when I get up early
And beat the sun outside, when the lights are all out.
So I feel sneaky
Walking outside into the cool city,
Like a shadow, shuffling on the streets, all wrapped up
With warm layers. There's no one around-yet-
Just me, and a few bums, and
I'm invisible. I like to be unseen.
At this hour there's no sound.
Behind the black buildings, up in the sky
(Which looks pretty near to the top of New York)
It's inky blue and bright even without planets.
Some stores are open, in huddles from block to block.
A coffee shop flickers on; across the street the newsstand
Is too bright—it makes me squint. It looks warm, though...
Do I want a candy bar? No. Too soon.
79th Street yawns open and stretches towards the East River,
Where the coral fire of the sun heats the Underbellies of cool night clouds.
I love that, it makes me feel like nothing.
The morning creeps up on you before you know it,
And it always makes me feel glad to be awake.
Coffee would be nice...
...It's cold outside.
There's a wind, and it pinches my skin together tightly and I can't wait to get inside somewhere; should I go to Le Panto's, there's a nice view of the sun.
Over the East River there, and every time I see it, it turns
Into a richer shade of rose, tie-dyeing the sky in streaks
Of orange and violet.
I sure wouldn't wear those colors but they look nice
Up there in the sky. It's nice to sit down, here, now.
If I stick around, maybe some people I know will come in and talk
For a while.
It's too early now, and the waiters have just finished
Rolling up the steel window shades...
...My coffee has grease globs floating on the surface,
I like black coffee with sugar, so the grease stands out,
In blue and green streaks if it catches light.
But I drink it anyway. It's warm and has no taste
Good old American Coffee. Some of it always seems to drip Down the side of the place where I sipped it.
I like watching people here, there is a mannish woman
Over there, reading a newspaper and wearing grey sweats.
She is eating a bagel. The radio is on, and it's War news.
Somehow the morning is over, but no one has come in Yet...
...My coffee is cool,
I think I see someone coming to sit down and talk.

Excerpt from "Object Piece"
by Francesca Mabon

There were many things about herself that Gladys did not understand. Sometimes she acknowledged this ignorance without anxiety, waving it off as narcissism or vanity. Some things made herself uneasy, and bobbed like ocean buoys in her conscience, even though she tried repeatedly to repress them. Some things made her annoyed, like this recent affinity she had been developing for lipstick. In the seconds it took to swivel the waxy color out of its shell and slide it across her lips, she found a brief blissful sensation unmatched by shopping, sex or chewing on creamy chocolates. The thick, oily coat of vivid brightness slashed across her face made Gladys feel 'dressed,' and lifted her spirits instantly, regardless of the depths of her mood.

During the past few weeks she had worked herself up into an obsession with finding the perfect mate for her mouth: that color that would glide with creamy exactness and illuminate her face, like the sleeping beauty when kissed by the handsome prince; only her lips would be awakened by Max Factor or Revlon, not Prince Charming.

She had dragged minutes browsing through many stores and malls searching for the 'right one', and had even purchased several tubes of lipstick in a similar color range, just to compare and contrast the effect each shade had against her skin. The cheapest brands were dry and candle-like, waxy in texture and glue-thick on the skin. They tended to tug at the lips and stain them for hours, even after a good scrubbing of cold cream and water.

The moderately priced-but not too cheap brands felt oily and slippery and endured a life span of about thirty minutes. Although in cold weather, when the wind sucked all of the moisture out of her lips, Gladys found these types preserving and called 'Teaberry Rose,' which suggested to Gladys Japanese gardens and large, fragrant blossoms. It mad her feel relaxed, and reluctant even to close her mouth when she had it on, because the name imbibed such fragile softness.

Gladys felt ashamed and silly but actually rather enjoyed herself. Lipstick shopping felt like Christmas shopping, only she did not have to think about anyone but herself when she pursued a new color. Her husband, innocent of the depth of her fixation, thought it was cute. He chided her laughingly for leaving lip-prints all over glasses, cigarettes and even the snowy-white fur of their cat, Maude, whom she had kissed one afternoon.

"You women and your makeup, I swear," he shook his head and looked at her. "You'd think that you're all scared of showing your own faces to the world. By the way, I like that color-what is it?" he bent closer, investigating Gladys' mouth, which was swathed in Honeyrum punch.

"Oh," sighed Gladys wearily, "I don't remember. I only bought it week ago, though. I'm glad you like it, dear." Of course she remembered all too well what color it was: she would remember it for a long time. How her heart pounded when her husband loomed closer to her, absorbed by the lipstick, captivated by its power which she had long been enslaved by. If only for a minute, had indeed, she noticed; yes, indeed been enchanted. She felt closer to him all of a sudden.

"You really like it, honey?" she piped up energetically, startling him because he hadn't expected her to chime in like that.

"Uh, yes, actually. I do. I really do, you look great," He smiled, gazing at her. But he wasn't looking at her lips anymore. She sighed. The spark fizzled. When his eyes drifted back to the paper he was reading, she spied on him quietly, like a cat curled up in a chair. His lips were not thin, but they were firm and pressed together, complacent in their flesh-colored splendor. They matched the stubbly cheeks, bony nose and wide-set blue eyes crowned by an arching eyebrow. How would he look with lipstick, she wondered, and pictured the unnatural gash that would stand out on her husband's face like Christmas tree lights encircling a desert pyramid. The tough made her feel guilty, for some reason.

"You feel deeply ashamed of sexual feelings that you may have harbored as a child towards your father, and there is much guilt associated with masturbation. Have you read 'The Sensuous Woman'?" asked one psychologist.

"There is a vacuum in your life; you feel unfulfilled and hollow. By coloring your face you are temporarily able to distance yourself from the inner emptiness and existential en-soi that permeates your being," claimed another.

"You are a victim of a man's world and are suffocated and enslaved by the media's evil shadow. Take another look in the mirror. Tell the reflection, "I'm perfectly nice without this stuff (which by the way is often tested on innocent animals aren't men beasts?) Dump all of your lipstick in some male chauvinist pig's mailbox!" a feminist group leader declared.

Some of what the psychologists said was interesting, some of it irritated her. After each visit she felt entitled to buy another lipstick. She made sure that a different color was painted on before each therapist. Sometimes, Gladys mused, she just felt like one, big facial orifice. After days of running monotonous domestic chores she would arrange the lipsticks in her drawer so that they were all in perfect color arrangement.

" I think it's a feminine perversion," the words of a psychologist echoed in her head. "It's a cause for investigation." This amused Gladys after it at first shocked her. She was a pervert! Imagine! What would her husband think? Well, knowing him he would think it was a riot and hoot, then grumble that therapy was a waste of money and who the hell do those shrinks think they are, anyway? She smeared on a tube of 'honeyed pink,' content for a moment.

"Painted Time"

—by Annie Chu from A Flower's Way

Memories are layers of paint one on top of the other covering, the last color fading disappearing, but yet still there if one took time to scrape the new layer away and find the one lost in time
in years ago of the last tenants and finally at the last layer find the beginning,
the day we were born.

The Inauguration of Judith R. Shapiro

October 27, 1994 marked the official inauguration of Judith R. Shapiro, the sixth president and tenth leader of Barnard College. The ceremony took place in Riverside Church, a short walk from the Barnard campus.

It was a festive day. Brightly colored fabric decorated the roofs and ledges of all the academic buildings as well as McIntosh Center. Matching balloons danced from the tops of lamp-posts and arched over the main campus gate, Craeting a festive ambiance on campus.

An academic procession led the way to the church ceremony, which was attended by Barnard students, faculty, administration, and staff, as well as representatives from other colleges and civic and cultural institutions. Alumnae and processing students carried banners representing all of Barnard's classes.

At the church, the Barnard-Columbia Gospel Choir added their voices to the celebration. President Shapiro was presented with a medallion bearing the Barnard motto, "Following the way of reason." She spoke of the importance of women's colleges and of Barnard's position within the Columbia University structure.

Office of the President

Dear Class of 1995:

This is my first year at Barnard, and you are the first Barnard senior class that I have known. I came here, in good part, because of the reputation of Barnard women--smart and feisty and awake to the world in which they live. It is quite clear to me that you are more than living up to the standards set by your predecessors. Like them, you face an unpredictable future and like them, you will surely make a difference whatever you do and wherever you go.

Perhaps you don't realize how very well you are prepared--much better, in fact, than you can know as you emerge from those welters of half-sentences and references that finally coalesced into senior theses and that blur of graduate school applications and those lump-in-the throat farewells to classmates. It's the liberal arts graduate who can critically examine new issues, the liberal arts graduate who can research a problem and come up with new combinations, and the liberal arts graduate who is equipped to enjoy the kaleidoscope of change and challenge that never ceases. If that is generally true for all liberal arts graduates, and I believe that it is, it applies even more to Barnard graduates whose very demanding education has been not only about the world, but very much in that world.

As for those farewells, they aren't forever or even for long. Your college friends will remain your best friends even though time and distance intervene. That has always been true, but now e-mail, and other new technologies, will allow your contacts to be even more immediate.

Although you are graduating, we have no intention of losing sight of you. Our pride in you during these past four years, our confidence in your future accomplishments, and the mission and goals we share mean that we shall ask you back to campus over and over--to discover what you are up to and to let you see what we are up to. We hope that you will return soon and often.

With all good wishes and much affection,

Sincerely,
Judith Shapiro
Judith R. Shapiro
President

Dorothy S. Denburg
Dean of the College

To the Class of 1995:

Yours is the last class for which I served as class dean through your first two years at Barnard. Since your Orientation, I have had the pleasure of getting to know many of you well and to marvel at your achievements, at the contributions you have made to campus life, and to watch your growth into confident, competent Barnard women.

You hold a special place in my heart. I wish each of you happiness in the years ahead. I know you will make your mark on the world as you have here. As you make your way, I hope that you will think, from time to time, of these words of wisdom from Shel Silverstein:

Listen to the MUSTN'TS, child,
Listen to the DON'TS
Listen to the SHOULDN'TS
The IMPOSSIBLES, the WON'TS
Listen to the NEVER HAVES
Then listen close to me–
Anything can happen, child,
ANYTHING can be.

Sincerely,
Dorothy Denburg

Arden Studios

The ceremony was followed by a reception in McIntosh which spread out to Altschul Plaza and Lehman Lawn. The band and dancers on stilts entertained the guests. Late that evening, students hosted "Webster Hall at Barnard Hall," a party celebrating the inauguration that included two floors of music, one for quiet jazz and another for the dancers in the crowd. It was at this event that the new President was presented with a gift from the students: a large photo album with numerous snapshots of the student body.

THE ASSOCIATE ALUMNAE OF BARNARD COLLEGE WELCOMES THE CLASS OF 1995

Congratulations and welcome to the Associate Alumnae of Barnard College (AABC). You'll be invited to special events and young alumnae programs; have the opportunity to audit courses; be able to use the physical education facilities and libraries; get involved with regional networks; and be eligible for a graduate studies fellowship. Call the Office of Alumnae Affairs to locate a classmate or the Career Services Office to find a career contact. Through the pages of Barnard, the alumnae magazine, you'll always know where your classmates are and what they are doing. We look forward to working with you in the years ahead.

Yesterday is history, Tomorrow is a mystery.
Today is a gift - That is why we call it the present.
Congratulations, Bonnie. You have been our gift everyday.
I wish you all the happiness and love in the years to come.
Love, Dad

Dearest Bonnie - We have watched you grow and mature throughout the years and we are so proud of you and your achievements. The wonderful woman you have become deserves accolades for the strength and determination you have shown under all circumstances. We hold each other in our hearts and memories, and that is the core of life on this Earth. Know that we will always be there for you, whether in flesh or in spirit. Feel the spirit of Grandma, who cannot share this happy time with you and remember her love. As you continue into the next chapter of your life, bring with you your best for living and loving. May your caring nature and sensitive ways guide you, with the strength of God, to a long and healthy life that is surrounded by love.
We love you - Grandpa, Aunt Sue & Uncle Fred

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

ROSANNE -TO THE BEST CO-EDITOR! IT WAS FUN WORKING WITH YOU THIS YEAR. I THINK WE MADE A GREAT TEAM. I COULD NOT HAVE DONE IT WITHOUT YOU. ALWAYS REMEMBER: SOLICITING BUSINESS ADS ON BROADWAY, (TRYING TO) WORK IN THE OFFICE ON SUNDAYS - "I'LL CALL YOU BACK IN TWO MINUTES!," OUR EXCELLENT COMPUTER SKILLS ("IS THE PRINTER ON?"), AND OF COURSE, YOU, LISA, AND I AT THE WOOLWORTH PHOTO BOOTH. BEST OF LUCK!
LISA - THANKS FOR ALL YOUR HELP THIS YEAR. I'M SO GLAD I HAD THE OPPORTUNITY TO WORK WITH YOU ON THE YEARBOOK. YOU DID AN AMAZING JOB AS EDITOR-IN-CHIEF. ALWAYS REMEMBER THE PHOTO BOOTH FIASCO! BEST OF LUCK IN THE FUTURE. -ELIZABETH

I WOULD LIKE TO THANK ALL THOSE PEOPLE WHO HELPED ME TO PUT THE SPORTS SECTION TOGETHER & THEN SOME...
THANKS LISA FOR HELPING ME WITH ALL OF THOSE LAYOUTS & TYPING OF THE ROSTERS, SINCE I NEVER FULLY MASTERED PAGEMAKER!
I WOULD BE COMPLETELY LOST WITHOUT ALL OF THOSE WONDERFUL PEOPLE AT SPORTS INFORMATION, ESPECIALLY MELISSA, WHO WAS ALWAYS WILLING TO LEND ME A FEW PICTURES...
THANKS TOCOLUMBIA SPECTATOR FOR FILLING IN THE GAPS IN OUR SEARCH FOR CREW PICTURES.
THANKS TO MY SWEET SUITEMATES, RANETH, HYE-YOUN, CELINE AND SIU WHO HAD THE PATIENCE TO DEAL WITH MY CRAZINESS ALL YEAR, BETWEEN MED-SCHOOL APPLICATIONS, MY SENIOR PROJECT (THOSE RATS!!) AND THE YEARBOOK TOO. (ESPECIALLY WHEN RANETH AND HYE-YOUN HAD THEIR OWN YEARBOOK SECTION TO DEAL WITH!)
THANKS TO SCOTT, MY LOVE, WHO HAS KEPT ME SANE AND WHO HAS SUPPORTED ME THROUGH ONE OF THE CRAZIEST YEARS OF MY LIFE & THROUGH THE PAST 4 YEARS AT BARNARD. HONEY, THE FUN HAS JUST BEGUN!! (MOO!)
MOST OF ALL I WOULD LIKE TO THANK MY MOM, DAD AND BROTHER FOR BEING BY MY SIDE. I'M SORRY I'VE BEEN SUCH A COSTLY KID, MOM AND DAD, WITH FLATBUSH, BARNARD AND NOW COLUMBIA MED...I PROMISE YOU ALL FREE MEDICAL CARE, AS LONG AS YOU PROMISE NOT TO SUE ME FOR MALPRACTICE!! THANKS. I LOVE YOU, FOREVER. -SHERYL

KUDOS TO MY NON-EXISTANT STAFF AND ALL THE OTHER EDITORS. IT HAS BEEN A GREAT OPPORTUNITY TO LEARN NEW THINGS AND MEET NEW PEOPLE. LISA - THERE IS LIFE BEYOND THE MORTARBOARD. CONGRATULATIONS TO THE CLASS OF '95! ALL OF THIS WAS FOR YOU. -PERI

HEY MORTARBOARD STAFF PHOTOGRAPHERS, THIS IS PEI-LING... HOW MANY TIMES HAVE YOU HEARD THAT THIS YEAR? THANKS FOR PUTTING UP WITH ALL THOSE LAST-MINUTE-LATE-NIGHT PHONEMAIL MESSAGES. I REALLY APPRECIATED THE FACT THAT YOU GUYS NEVER COMPLAINED.
SHERYL, IT WAS REALLY SWEET OF YOU TO LEAVE MESSAGES OF CONCERN OVER MY LATE-NIGHT HABITS. HAVE A REALLY WONDERFUL WEDDING AND GOOD LUCK AT COLUMBIA MED SCHOOL.
WINNIE, I PICKED ON YOU THE MOST BECAUSE YOU'RE MY FRIEND. THANKS FOR ALWAYS BEING THERE FOR ME.
MASSI, YOU WERE SO SWEET TO TAKE THOSE ACAPELLA PICTURES.
ANGE & JULES, THANKS FOR TAKING THOSE CLUB PICS NO ONE ON MY STAFF, INCLUDING ME, COULDN'T TAKE. YOU ARE TRUE FRIENDS.
TO ALL MY UNDERGRADUATE STAFF, I HOPE YOU HAD A GOOD TIME AT MORTARBOARD THIS YEAR.
TO ALL MY SENIOR STAFF, HAPPY GRADUATION! -PEI-LING

FOR HELPING ME TO MAKE THE SENIOR SECTION POSSIBLE, I WOULD LIKE TO THANK LISA FOR INVITING HYE & I TO DO IT; HYE FOR BEING CAJOLED INTO DOING IT WITH ME AND THE GREATEST CO-EDITOR ALIVE ON THE FACE OF THE EARTH (I MEAN WHO ELSE WOULD PUT UP WITH LISTENING TO ME SING TUNES FROM THE SOUND OF MUSIC, REBA MCINTYRE'S GREATEST HITS, AND VARIOUS EAGLES SONGS?); LORELIE AND PERI FOR HELPING US SO GRACIOUSLY WITH OUR LAYOUTS; AND PATRICIA FOR GUIDANCE AND COMMENTS.

ON A MORE PERSONAL NOTE...I WOULD LIKE TO THANK GOD FOR HIS WISDOM, GUIDANCE, COMPASSION, GENEROSITY, AND REASSURANCE THROUGHOUT ALL FOUR YEARS OF COLLEGE. THANKS MOM, DAD, SARA, KRISTY, AND BOPHA FOR BEING SO SUPPORTIVE AND EVER-PRESENT FROM THE VERY BEGINNING; WITHOUT YOU GUYS I AM LOST. HYE, GRACE, SHERYL, CELINE, SIU, MARIA, JANE, AND LEIGH: SUCH GOOD "BOSOM" BUDDIES ARE RARE GEMS. I SHALL TREASURE OUR FRIENDSHIPS FOREVER. HYE, MY "SISTER/TWIN," WEREN'T WE ATTACHED AT THE HIP AT BIRTH?

AND NOW TO HONEY. THANK YOU FOR OUR BEAUTIFUL FRIENDSHIP; FOR YOUR AVID SUPPORT AND WORDS OF ENCOURAGEMENT AND PRAISE; FOR YOUR OVERFLOWING PATIENCE AND UNDERSTANDING; FOR YOUR ABILITY TO COMMUNICATE WITH ME IN ALL SORTS OF FOWL MOODS; FOR YOUR SMILES, LAUGHTER, AND POUTS; AND FOR LOVING ME LIKE NO ONE ELSE EVER COULD: COMPLETELY AND UNCONDITIONALLY. YOU MAKE ME SO HAPPY; WITHOUT YOU I AM NOT FULLY ALIVE. MY HEART AND DIPLOMA GO TO YOU, BONG. I CANNOT WAIT TILL JUNE WHEN WE CAN FINALLY BECOME HUSBAND AND WIFE. -RANETH

REMEMBER THE LATE, FRANTIC NIGHTS SUSTAINED THROUGH CAFFEINATED SODA AND OTHER SYNTHETICALLY-FLAVORED GOODIES, AS WE ALL WORKED LIKE A TEAM (WELL, SORT OF) ON AMPETHAMINES. PROFUSE THANKS TO ALL WHO MADE THIS YEARBOOK POSSIBLE, ESPECIALLY: RANETH (AKA 'RONETTE'/ CO-EDITOR), TO MY BOSOM-BUDDY OL' PAL; IT'S ONLY BEEN FOUR YEARS, BUT IT FEELS LIKE I'VE KNOWN YOU ALL MY LIFE! THANKS FOR YOUR CHERISHED FRIENDSHIP; I THINK I HAVE A BIT OF A DRAWL NOW..... WHENEVER I LISTENED TO E. JOHN, BEATLE, SOUND OF MUSIC, OR REBA, I'LL REMEMBER THIS! ACK! THANKS - NO, REALLY! - FOR PULLING ME INTO THIS, I ACTUALLY FEEL GOOD AND PROUD ABOUT WHAT WE'VE ACCOMPLISHED! I'M CONSTANTLY AMAZED AT HOW WE GOT THROUGH THIS WITHOUT TOTALLY DEMOLISHING THE COMPUTER WITH AN AX. -- I AGREE WITH YOU NOW, IBM IS BETTER.

LORELIE: FOR THE LAST TIME, IT'S HYE-YOUN, NOT RAYON! JUST KIDDING. THANKS FOR ALL YOUR HELP, COULDN'T HAVE SURVIVED THIS WITHOUT YOU! I'LL REMEMBER OUR ANXIOUS , MANIC, TALK ABOUT ---- AND CLASSES! DON'T FORGET CANDIDE: "TOUT EST AU MIEUX." I THINK...?

LISA, TO THE BESTEST EDITOR-IN-CHIEF I'VE EVER WORKED FOR: WE'LL ALL HAVE FOND MEMORIES OF THAT CLAUSTROPHOBIC, OVER-HEATED, PURPLE-PAPERED ROOM, WON'T WE? THANKS FOR GETTING US THROUGH! CAN'T THINK OF ANYONE WHO WOULD HAVE HANDLED IT BETTER!

SHERYL (AKA SHERTYL/MOOCOW): THIS YEARBOOK REALLY WAS A WHOLE-SUITE EFFORT WASN'T IT? YEA! WE FINALLY MADE IT! I'LL MISS YOU AND ALL OUR SUITIES, (RANETH, CELINE, AND SIU) ESPECIALLY THURS. TV NIGHTS, "ER," ETC, STING - OUR SHARED MUSICAL TASTES - AND OUR SUITE-BONDING OVER TEA AND ICE CREAM, TALKING ABOUT ANYTHING AND EVERYTHING! I LOVE YOU Y'ALL! BYE! -HYE!

MY FOUR YEARS AT COLLEGE ARE SOON OVER AND I 'M EXTREMELY EXCITED! ! NONETHELESS, TO JESSICA, MERYL, & LISA, COFFEE AND WHITE CHOCOLATE MOUSSE CAKE WILL STILL SUFFICE FOR THOSE WEEKEND EXCURSIONS. TO SHERYL AND RANETH, MY BEST WISHES FOR YOUR WEDDINGS THIS SUMMER. TO MY FELLOW STAFF MEMBERS, ROOM 104 MCINTOSH MUST HAVE HAD SOME SORT OF BRAIN ALTERING EFFECT ON ALL OF US DURING 2 AM. UGH!- BUT NOW IT'S ALL OVER AND WE CAN ALL SOON CELEBRATE!! XOXOX - LORELIE

FOR ALL THEIR HELP WITH THE STUDENT LIFE SECTION AND THOSE LATE NIGHTS BEFORE THE DEADLINE, I WOULD LIKE TO THANK ALL THE 1995 MORTARBOARD EDITORS, ESPECIALLY LISA, LORELIE, AND PERI. FOR ALL THEIR GREAT IDEAS AND INSPIRATION, I WANT TO THANK MY FRIENDS WHO KEPT ME IN GOOD SPIRITS THROUGHOUT THE YEAR WITH THEIR CREATIVITY AND HUMOR. FINALLY FOR THEIR UNENDING SUPPORT, I WANT TO THANK TONY AND MY FAMILY WHO ENDURED MY SOMETIMES CRAZY SCHEDULE. WITHOUT ALL OF YOU, THE SECTION WOULDN'T HAVE TURNED OUT AS WONDERFUL AS IT IS! -EVELYN

I WOULD LIKE TO EXPRESS MY GRATITUDE AND APPRECIATION TOWARDS MY FAMILY, FRIENDS, SUITEMATES, ADVISERS, AND EMPLOYERS, FOR PROVIDING SYMPATHY WHEN APPROPRIATE, JUMP STARTS WHEN NEEDED, AND CONTINUOUS SUPPORT AND ENCOURAGEMENT. SPECIAL AND HEARTFELT THANKS TO THOSE OF YOU WHO CAME TO MY RESCUE ON ALL THOSE DESPERATE OCCASIONS (YOU KNOW WHO YOU ARE)!! WITHOUT YOUR HELP, I NEVER COULD HAVE STAYED SANE FOR 4 YEARS. -CARLA

Editor's Note

I contemplated writing an editor's note concerning the entire process we went through to create this book (and how much each member of the staff toiled and slaved over their sections nights on end), complete with the usual reminiscing about what a great four years it's been and extolling the virtues of the graduating class, but.... I decided against it. Suffice it to say, that this volume of the 101st Mortarboard attempts to capture and convey the memories as well as the lifestyle of four years at Barnard. Here's hoping that we succeeded.

Making this book was a true test of my sanity and stability, and I'd like to thank the following souls for helping me hold on to it: all my friends, Patricia for having faith in me, Aster, and my editors: Raneth and Hye for doing such an excellent job, Peri for the help on proofs and writing that extra article, Evelyn for being so dependable, Rosanne and Liz for managing to keep us out of debt, Pei-Ling and the photography staff for willingly taking that extra photo, Sheryl for managing to get all the sports pictures, and Carla for helping me to get started. Also, special thanks goes out to Nora for helping me find the right words when I needed them, Lorelie and Jess for the fab gatefold collage, and Hugh for doing an equally impressive rendering of the gate.

Most of all, I can't forget the support of my mum, dad, and Belinda. Even when the road grew rocks you stuck by. This book is dedicated to the loving memory of my sister Christina.
